Open Field For Nixon

Gov. Knight Drops Out of Big Race

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Goodwin J. Knight's exit from the 1962 campaign tightened up California's race for governor today.

Political leaders differed on the eventual effect, but most agreed it enhanced Richard M. Nixon's already bright chances for the Republican nomination.

Knight, 65, announced Tuesday he would not file for his old job in the June 5 primary. He was stricken last November by infectious hepatitis—a liver disease. His doctor, he said, advised against a strenuous campaign.

The decision by the colorful ex-governor removed the prospect of a Republican slugfest between Nixon and Knight, who had pledged a "real gloves-off fight."

It installed a hard-charging state assemblyman, Joseph C. Shell, 43, of Los Angeles, as Nixon's chief challenger on the Republican ticket.

Shell, an avowed conservative, has been making evident headway against Nixon's early commanding lead in polls. A wealthy oilman, he has delivered at least 400 talks throughout the state while Nixon has been busy on a book and other matters.

A third GOP candidate, former Lt. Gov. Harold J. (Butch) Powers, made a pitch for Knight's votes, saying "he and I always saw eye to eye." Knight, governor from 1953 through 1958, remained silent on whether he'll take sides in the Republican primary.

Democrats probably were disappointed by Knight's action. They had hoped that a serious

Junta Takes Over Reins In Dominica

Bloody Rioting Forces President Out of Office

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (P) — Pressured by bloody rioting, President Joaquin Balaguer resigned Tuesday night and a new civil-military junta was sworn in to rule this troubled Caribbean island nation.

The junta was installed at the National Palace several hours after air force tank troops fired into a defiant crowd of hundreds in the heart of the capital, killing at least four persons and wounding a score more.

WASHINGTON — (P) — The United States assailed the new junta government in the Dominican Republic today as a "step backward." Officials said the United States is considering withdrawal of recognition.

The shooting touched off the most violent rioting in the city in months, and demands mounted for the resignations of Balaguer and his armed forces chief, Air Force Gen. Pedro Rodriguez Echavarria, who had been accused of planning to set up a military dictatorship.

News dispatches from Santo Domingo were subject to censorship and made no mention of the fate of Gen. Rodriguez Echavarria. However, he told newsmen of the government change and Balaguer's resignation after a long emergency meeting of the State Council, and it was assumed he was still in control of the armed forces.

The junta — four civilians and three military men — took over the government from the all-civilian seven-man council which had ruled for only 16 days. The council, headed by Balaguer, was installed Jan. 1 to guide the nation for 13 months toward its first free elections after 31 years of iron-fisted rule by the late dictator, Generalissimo Rafael L. Trujillo.

The change in government drew immediate fire from the National Civic Union, the largest anti-Trujillo faction, and leader of the opposition to Balaguer. A spokesman called it a military coup d'état and said all Civic Union members in government posts would resign. However, associates of one of them, Foreign Minister Antonio Bonilla Atiles, said he had no plans to step out.

One Wins, One Loses

HOLDEN, Mo. (AP) — One bond proposal won and another lost Tuesday in a special election. Both were for water system improvements.

A $140,000 general obligation bond proposal lost by seven votes. Voters passed a $65,000 revenue bond proposal by 45 votes.

Jones Files for Nod In 16th District

JEFFERSON CITY (P) — State Sen. Jack C. Jones of Carrollton filed today for the Democratic nomination in the 16th Senatorial District.

Jones, 41, is completing his second term in the Senate. In the 1961 session he sponsored industrial development legislation, a law limiting installment credit charges and another setting up a state Water Resources Board.

His district picked up a new county, Pettis, in last year's senatorial redistricting. The other counties are Daviess, Livingston, Caldwell, Ray, Carroll, Lafayette and Saline.

Reds Point Finger At V. M. Molotov

Party Newspaper Says He Waged Policy Opposition

MOSCOW (P) — Pravda today accused former Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov of waging dogmatic and stubborn opposition to Premier Khrushchev's policy of peaceful coexistence.

The attack in the Soviet Communist party newspaper was the first propaganda blast against the old Bolsheviks since the Soviet government announced Jan. 8 that he would return to his former post as permanent Soviet representative to the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna.

The blast was so strong that foreign observers in Moscow felt the battle against Molotov and his so-called anti-party group could still be under way.

"Lenin's views on questions of foreign policy," said Pravda, "and above all on problems of war, peace and peaceful coexistence are being distorted not only by bourgeois ideologists but also by people who slip from the living and creative Marxist-Leninist position to the path of dead dogmatism."

"This refers directly to the anti-party group headed by Molotov, (Lazarus M.) Kaganovich and (former Premier G. M.) Malenkov. As is known, Molotov, in his dogmatic stubbornness, slips down to making statements alleging that Lenin never and at no time spoke about coexistence of states with different social systems."

Molotov, now 71, returned home from Vienna Nov. 12 to fight a move to expel him from the Communist party after Khrushchev had denounced him and other members of the anti-party group once again at the 22nd Soviet Communist party congress.

Thieves Fail to Open Safe Of Local Water Department

Professionals' Blamed For Safe-cracking Try

Thieves took the coffee money, the stamp money and some cash from envelopes taken from the night depository in the Sedalia Water Department office sometime Tuesday night or Wednesday morning, but they failed in the first "vault job" in Sedalia in recent months.

Officials said the break-in and attempt to enter the vault was probably the work of professionals. Also, according to Water Department employees, they were very neat in their work, because there were no footprints from the plaster dust anywhere except in the immediate vicinity of where the thieves were working.

The thief, or thieves, entered the offices by prying open the rear window in the office of Herbert Taylor, office manager. This gave the burglars access to the main offices, basement and washrooms. They went, according to the theory of investigating officers, to the basement where they obtained two three-foot-long screwdrivers and a pinch bar to work on the brick vault walls.

The burglars worked from inside the washroom on the main floor. The wall of the washroom separates the washroom from the vault, where the bulk of the department records and ready cash are kept. This washroom area is not visible from the street.

Using the department tools, the burglars removed the first layer of bricks and placed them on the washroom floor, where they were found, along with the tools, when Water Department employees discovered the break-in upon reporting for work Wednesday morning.

The break-in was reported by Mrs. Violet Nichols, Chief of Police Ralph Hamlin and Sheriff Emmett Fairfax and Deputy Jack Couts began the investigation. Fairfax later turned the bulk of the investigation over to Hamlin.

The burglars pried open the night depository and took several envelopes to the basement washroom, where they opened the envelopes and removed the money. It was estimated by department officials that some $75 was taken from the envelopes.

The thieves obtained about $3 in money the employees used to buy coffee, and about $2 from money used to buy stamps.

Taylor said it will be comparatively easy to determine whose deposits were stolen, because the burglars placed the empty envelopes in the washroom basin and turned the water on.

Officials theorized the envelopes were "washed" to effectively remove fingerprints. Taylor said, however, that the names of the depositors are still clearly legible, and that the department can easily determine who paid their money.

New Effort On Test Ban With Soviets

Next Talks Round Being Planned; Tests to Go On

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States plans a determined new effort in the next round of disarmament negotiations to get the Soviet Union to agree to a treaty banning nuclear weapons tests under an international inspection system, officials said to-day.

The United States will go ahead, meanwhile, with its program of underground test explosions, and the probability is that in the next couple of months President Kennedy will make a final decision to conduct nuclear tests in the atmosphere.

Informants said today that the present trend of administration thinking is strongly in favor of atmospheric tests aimed at improving U.S. nuclear weapons performance and developing an anti-missile missile.

The next round of disarmament negotiations is expected to open in Geneva March 14. The date and place are tentative pending approval of the 18 nations which will participate in the conference under U.N. auspices.

Nuclear test ban talks, which opened at Geneva almost three years ago, came to a dead end Tuesday.

Injured were H. E. Ford, Route 1, Smithton, who suffered abrasions and contusions of both hips and shock; his wife, Lillian Ford, 31, suffered a deep laceration on the left hip, a broken pelvis and shock; and L. L. Weiler, 60, Route 1, Smithton, who suffered multiple fractures of the right chest, a deep laceration of the chin, and shock.

All three injured persons were admitted to Bothwell Hospital, where they were taken in the Ewing ambulance, after receiving emergency treatment from Dr. K. L. Holdren.

According to Trooper Pete Stohr, Missouri Highway Patrol, who investigated both accidents, the first one occurred about 4 p.m. It involved a 1956 Dodge sedan driven north on Route C by Paula Schreiner, 55, 2701 West Broadway.

Stohr reported a Chevrolet pickup truck, owned by Ford, was "parked partly on the highway," and the Dodge came over a hill.

Fallout Shelter Survey Team Arrives Here

Representatives of the Prichard and Company firm arrived in Sedalia Wednesday to begin its survey under the state's Fallout Shelter Program.

Involved in the survey are: Bates, Benton, Cass, Cedar, Cooper, Henry, Hickory, Johnson, Lafayette, Monteau, Morgan, Pettis, Saline, St. Clair and Vernon counties.

They were scheduled to meet with Mayor Abe Silverman and Jack Kraus, civil defense director, later this afternoon.

The firm, under direction and contract of the Army Corps of Engineers, is surveying buildings to determine those that will provide adequate shelter from radioactive fallout.

Every participating store will have a large green poster with "Discount-Days" on the door, so that customers may know that their tickets will be good on merchandise in that store during Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

'Town Not Badly Hurt'

Iowa Town Is Booming Despite Huge Bank Loss

SHELDON, Iowa (AP) — Business is booming in Sheldon—has been going great guns for the past year in fact.

That's remarkable when you consider that this northwest Iowa prairie town of 4,250 was hit just a year ago with a $2-million embezzlement which closed for liquidation the highly respected Sheldon National Bank—the town's oldest banking institution.

It landed two of the town's most prominent citizens in federal prisons and brought bankruptcy to the Northern Biochemical Corp., the biggest industry in town.

It was just a year ago today that townspeople heard the news that Burnice Geiger—assistant cashier of the bank, a member of its board of directors, daughter of W. P. Iverson, bank president, and widely known as the town's benefactress—had admitted the embezzlement.

The exact amount, according to scrupulous records kept by Mrs. Geiger herself, was $2,126,859.10, taken over the 35 years she had worked in the bank.

It was disclosed that $900,000 of the bank's money apparently went into the coffers of Northern Biochemical, manufacturer of enzyme-based livestock feeds.

Its president, free-spending Harold Kistner Jr., ultimately was convicted on federal charges of aiding and abetting the embezzlement, fraudulent sale of Northern Biochemical stock, and conspiracy. Mrs. Geiger, 58, was sentenced to 15 years. Kistner, 36, to eight.

Closing of a bank and a major industry can't help but have a tremendous impact on the economy of a town Sheldon's size.

But looking back on the year past, Mayor Merrill Fritts concludes, "We've come along pretty

New Fashion Display Full Of New Ideas

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Patrick de Barentzen produced a new spring and summer fashion collection Tuesday night chock full of ideas.

Rib-hugging little jackets had collarless necklines high in front and carved out in V shapes or squares or horseshoes to just over the shoulder blades in back.

Opened-out accordion pleatings gave appealing texture to some of the trim, spare De Barentzen silk suits. Closely placed bias bands—worked horizontally, vertically and diagonally—added surface interest to other designs.

An evening coat's pleated collar swirled high around the face or opened out flat.

Colors were bright: yellow, oranges, maroons, pinks and greens. De Barentzen's coats had close-fitting bodices, wide skirts and wide bell sleeves falling from narrow shoulders.

Slim afternoon dusters, in crepe with the knotted scarf motif for bodice draping. Waistlines started to rise about cocktail time, when the line went Empire with pleated flared skirts.

The De Barentzen evening scene went off in too many directions at once to be consistent. The hats by M. Gilles, De Barentzen's partner, were the best part. Circles of flower pouf, with veiling centers, covered the face like a fence's mask.

Check Anti-Semitism

KLAGENFURT, Austria (AP)—Police are investigating an outbreak of anti-Semitism.

Anti-Semitic slogans have been scrawled repeatedly in the Jewish cemetery of this capital of Carinthia Province.

Graves of one Jewish family were smeared with excrement, tombstones were damaged and a member of the family received threatening letters.

Protest Color Bars

ERLANGEN, Germany (AP)—Students from African and Asian countries have protested against color bars they say have been raised by restaurant owners in this little Bavarian university town.

The foreign students office of Erlangen University said the protest was lodged after a number of African and Asian students had been thrown out of inns or were refused service.

Substitute Indictments In Tax Case

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Substitute indictments were returned Tuesday against Mr. and Mrs. John F. Byrne, who created a stir in December by pleading guilty to income tax evasion and contending they were innocent.

The new charges accused them of wilfully and knowingly short-changing the government on their 1956 and 1957 returns. The Internal Revenue Service alleges they had an income of $19,229 in 1956 but reported only $5,181, made $6,323 in 1957 and reported nothing.

Similar indictments were returned in April of 1961.

Mrs. Byrne confounded prosecutors and Judge Richard M. Duncan in December by refusing the government's offer to drop the charges against her.

She said she kept the books for her husband's chain of sandwich shops and shared the blame with him for the income tax trouble.

Judge Duncan accepted their pleas of guilty to the 1956 counts and dismissed the charges covering 1957.

In the news interview a few hours later, Mr. and Mrs. Byrne contended they were innocent and charged the Internal Revenue Service with harassment.

Judge Duncan called them back to court, revoked their guilty 1956 charges.

pleas and ordered them to stand trial.

F. Russell Millin, U. S. district attorney, said the federal grand jury was asked to return new indictments for both 1956 and 1957 because the dismissal of the original charges for 1957 created a legal technicality that would make it hard to get a conviction on the 1956 charges.

It was understood word of the change was communicated to Latin-American diplomats at a reception given Tuesday night for Roa by the ambassador from Uruguay, one of the seven Latin-American nations that still maintains diplomatic relations with Cuba.

Smallpox Victims Search Is Widened In Great Britain

LONDON (AP)—The search for smallpox victims in Britain widened today as new suspected cases of the disease cropped up in three more industrial centers.

After being confined mostly to areas around Bradford, in Yorkshire, four new suspect cases appeared in Manchester, Birmingham and Cardiff, in Wales.

Already five deaths—and possibly a sixth—have been attributed to smallpox since immigrants from Pakistan brought it to Britain just after Christmas. An undisclosed number of suspected cases are being held in isolation hospitals.

Bondsman Charged With Violation Of State Credit Law

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Roy G. Routh, 58, manager of Bond and Co., a loan brokerage firm, was charged in a warrant Tuesday with a violation of the state consumers' credit law.

Routh was arrested on Monday in connection with an investigation of St. Louis agencies which charge huge brokerage fees for obtaining small loans for customers.

Police said company records seized when Routh was arrested indicate customers were charged fees equivalent to 156 per cent annually on the total amount of the loan. Authorities said eight or nine other lending firms are being investigated on the basis of complaints filed by borrowers.

King said his client, the Gottlieb Co. of Chicago, and the American Bar Association supports the proposed measure to ban interstate shipment of the gambling machines and require their makers to register with the Justice Department.

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy earlier told the committee organized crime is making hundreds of millions of dollars a year out of these machines and it is time to tighten the federal laws against them.

Committee Studies New Pinball Law

WASHINGTON (AP)—Take an austere congressional hearing room. Bring in a couple of garish pinball machines. Set them to chugging and dinging, banging and whirring, winking and blinking, and what have you got?

You have a row of congressmen grinning like a bunch of kids who know they're not supposed to smile in church, but can't help noticing the minister is still wearing his bedroom slippers.

That was the situation Tuesday with the House Interstate Commerce Committee. The amused smiles didn't last long, because the subject at hand was serious—a proposed law to ban gambling type pinball machines that can't be touched under current federal laws.

Lawyer Rufus King demonstrated the difference between an amusement type pinball machine, made by one of his clients, and a gambling type that looks much the same but has an electronic inside that "looks like the control section of an ICBM rocket."

Investigation Opened Into Boy's Confession

CHICAGO (AP)—The state's attorney's office has taken over the investigation of a 13-year-old boy who allegedly confessed he started the fire at Our Lady of the Angels School which killed 92 children and 3 nuns in 1958.

States Atty. Daniel Ward said the boy will be brought into Family Court and a delinquency petition is expected to be filed.

The boy is not under arrest or police guard. No charges have been filed against the youth and authorities have declined to disclose his name.

The boy, now an eighth-grade public pupil in suburban Cicero, was in the fifth grade in the Chicago Roman Catholic school at the time of the fire, Dec. 1, 1958.

Ward declined to disclose the substance of the delinquency petition, saying he did not want to comment on the case because it might prejudice the interests of the people or the boy.

The Chicago Tribune, in a copy-right story Tuesday, said the boy admitted setting the school fire to John E. Reid, who runs a lie detection service, last Friday.

UN Pull-out For US Sought By Goldwater

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater says he would like to see the United States pull out of the United Nations.

He also criticized anew the Kennedy administration, but the Arizona conservative said Tuesday night he has no intention of running for the presidency.

Goldwater said, "There are too many extremists or people on the left in government. There are never any on the extreme right in government."

The Republican senator spoke to an audience of students and townspersons at Miami University.

As for the United Nations, he

PIN-WORMS A FAMILY AFFAIR

Fidgeting, nose-picking, a tormenting rectal itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms... ugly parasites that medical experts say infest 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do... and how they work.

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge... small, easy-to-take tablets... special sizes for children and adults.

Train Wreck Injures 12 Near DeSoto

DE SOTO, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Pacific's Texas Eagle passenger train crashed into a box car on the outskirts of DeSoto last night, knocking 15 of its 20 cars and three diesel units off the track.

Only one of the 248 passengers, Mrs. Robert Krieger, 21, of Monroe, Mich., was injured seriously. She was taken to a hospital at Festus with possible head injuries.

Eleven other passengers, the engineer and the firemen were treated by a DeSoto physician and released.

Engineer William H. Wagner, 65, of St. Louis and his fireman, Jerry Severs, 48, of Poplar Bluff, Mo., were trapped inside their twisted diesel for 30 minutes before rescue crews pried them free.

Wagner told newsmen the train was traveling 55 miles per hour as he entered DeSoto when: "I saw a boxcar on the track ahead of me. I went for the emergency (brake) but the engine smacked into the car. My fireman, Jerry, and I were knocked off our seats and for a second all we heard was grinding metal."

"I thought my time had come but we didn't hardly get hurt. I didn't even get my glasses broken."

The collision derailed the three diesel units, 11 baggage coaches and four passenger coaches. The cars tipped over on their sides but only the front diesel unit turned over.

There was no immediate explanation from Missouri Pacific officials as to why the box car was on the track.

Missouri Pacific said today the box car apparently was one of several standing on a side track at its DeSoto shops, awaiting repair. "Apparently one of these cars on this storage track was not clear of the main line," a spokesman said. "We are trying to find out why."

The accident occurred about an hour after the Texas Eagle left St. Louis for Texas and Louisiana. The train splits up at southern points with one section going to New Orleans, one to Houston, one to Fort Worth and one to San Antonio.

Passengers were returned to St. Louis, where a special train was made up. It was routed through southern Illinois to avoid the wreckage, which has blocked the track to all traffic. Railroad officials were not certain when the track could be repaired.

Other passengers injured included Mrs. Alfaretta Sloan, 50, DeSoto; Edward O'Shea, 24, DeSoto; G. A. Manning, 68, Newport, Ark.; Miss Theresa Schlett, 30, DeSoto; Harold Thompson, 52, DeSoto; and Conrad Hamlin, 28, Taylor, Ark.

Attendance at Knob Noster State Park was 406,960 for 1961 as compared with 294,737 for 1960.

Use of Missouri State Parks has climbed steadily since the end of World War II, and has doubled in the last three years.

Roaring River State Park attracted more visitors, 1,239,326, in 1961. Other attendance leaders included Table Rock, 990,790; Meramec, 522,930; Alley Spring, 425,997 and Lake of the Ozarks, 416,711.

"With greater interest in outdoor recreation, more leisure time and longer life we expect the use of Missouri State Parks to continue to climb," Jaeger said. "An attendance of 10 million visitors a year is not an undreamed of figure."

Injustice to Term

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Judge Raymond W. Graham granted Evelyn Jones, 27, a divorce from Ernest Jones Tuesday but said the basis for the petition was "the most amazing I've ever seen."

"That a husband and father of 11 children should be guilty of incompatibility does injustice to the term," said Judge Graham.

The system is owned by the property owners in Southern Hills and operated by a board of trustees consisting of Virgil Dieckhaus, Pat Patterson and Doyle Furnell.

Other business conducted by the property owners during the meeting was the creation of the Southern Hills council or committee. The functions of this committee would somewhat parallel that of a city council in that this committee would spearhead items of community interest and improvement as well as provide an organized representation of the people living in the community. Members elected to the committee are Gordon Childers, chairman, with Harold Vogel, Dr. R. A. Linsenhardt, James Harms and Wally Wise as members. This committee will act independent of the water board of trustees, a spokesman said.

Hard Times For Circuses May Be Over

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
NEW YORK (AP)—That great institution, the circus, in recent years has fallen upon hard times. Other forms of entertainment, including broadcasts, reached parts of the country that once depended upon an occasional visit of the traveling tent shows.

But now, in the measured opinion of Emmett Kelly, probably the nation's most famous clown, television is reviving interest in the big shows.

Kelly, whose "Weary Willie" character has delighted cotton candy-eating crowds for two generations, said that around 1950 he felt the circus had really "started turning out, circuses were combining and sometimes not even leaving winter quarters.

"But now things seem to be picking up," he continued. "People seem to want to go to the circus again. And I think TV is completely responsible — particularly because the children are interested."

Kelly will be narrator Sunday night of a Project 20 documentary showing behind-the-scenes circus life on NBC's "Show of the Week."

"But today's circuses aren't like the old ones," he conceded. "A lot of us can fly to play special circus dates, and then fly home again. We live in houses, not trains, and our children can go to school. It's not like the old days—but it's still the circus."

ABC will follow NBC's lead by running full length feature films regularly in prime time. Starting April 8, the network will put old movies with big star names in a two-hour spot on the Sunday evening schedule. There are reports that the plan will dislodge "Bus Stop" and "Adventures in Paradise," neither of which have been getting good audience ratings.

NBC's Saturday night movies—two hours of old films—have done fairly well, but their popularity seems to rise and fall with the quality of the movie and the size of the movie-star names involved.

ABC's decision to go ahead on Jan. 23 with the taped comedy special made by Ernie Kovacs shortly before his death could be a mistake in view of the tragic circumstances. It will be difficult for viewers to catch the spirit of his comedy. It may be a pretty morbid half hour.

Train Slices Through Big Grain Truck

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—A passenger train sliced through a big grain truck so deftly yesterday the driver of the truck and his helper hardly felt it.

Gene Wilson, 29-year-old trucker from Sterling, Colo., said there was a sudden drag after his tractor crossed the tracks. When he and Cliff Radcliff, 30, got out to investigate they found the Missouri Pacific's Missouri River Eagle standing between the front half of the grain trailer and its rear half.

The train, just leaving Kansas City, was delayed 45 minutes on its run from St. Louis to Omaha. Wilson was hauling 750 bushels of wheat from Sterling and was within 100 feet of his destination, an elevator at the junction of the Missouri and Kansas rivers, when the accident occurred.

Contract Breach Suit Against Gas Company

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—A $22.5 million breach of contract suit against Northern Natural Gas Co., Omaha, Neb., was transferred Tuesday to U.S. District Court here from Stevens County District Court.

The suit, believed to be one of the largest ever filed in U.S. court here, was accompanied by another suit for $3.5 million. Both suits were brought by Socony Mobil Oil Co., Inc., of New York City.

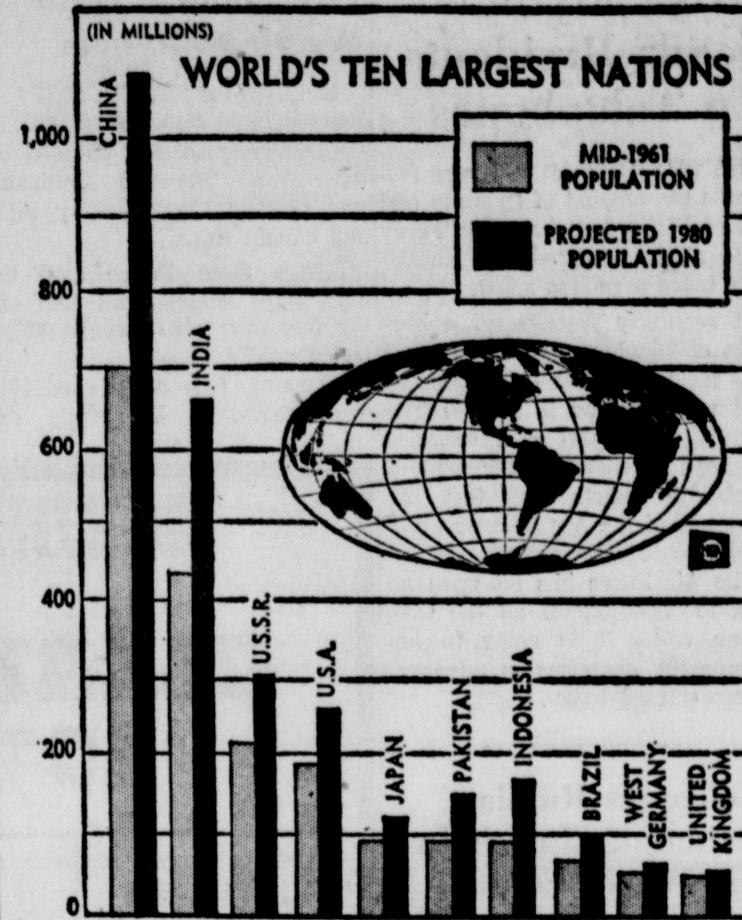

The suits were transferred here on petition filed by Mark Adams, Wichita attorney for Northern Natural Gas, through a claim of diversity of citizenship of Socony and Northern Natural Gas.

Socony claimed violation of a 1953 contract between Republican Natural Gas Co., of Dallas, Tex., which was purchased by Socony Dec. 28, 1961—and Northern Natural Gas for purchase of gas from an 84,641 acre area in the Hugoton Kan. gas field.

Under the agreement Northern was to purchase 60 per cent of its Omaha district (Nebraska and Iowa) requirements from Republic, not to exceed 36 billion, 500 million cubic feet a year at 16.4 pounds per square inch.

The plaintiff's petition also alleged the contract provided that in any year Northern failed to purchase the volume of gas agreed upon, they would pay Republic the difference between the amount taken and the contracted volume.

Socony also seeks $10,500,000 in exemplary damages from Northern for "disregard of contract."

POPULATION SWEEPSTAKES—Bulging world in Newschart above symbolizes earth's expanding human population. Populations of the ten largest nations are shown, as they were in 1961 and are expected to be in 1980. The order will be the same, except that Indonesia and Pakistan will pass Japan. China will have well over one billion persons. Data on chart is from Population Reference Bureau.

Have Some Cappuccino!

Coffee Houses Specialize In Shows Not Good Coffee

NEW YORK (AP)—If all you want is a quick cup of coffee, don't go to a New York coffee house. It's not the place for it.

The scores of coffee houses and cafés espresso that have mushroomed in this city are places to sit and linger over such exotic brews as cappuccino, café mocha and, of course, café espresso.

An increasing number of them are places to go for a variety of off-beat entertainments. At the Café Manzini, for example, you can see avant garde plays. At Phase 2, you can watch original musical revues. At the Exodus, you can hear songs in many languages. At the Figaro you can attend a concert.

The single element that ties all of the diversified coffee houses together is the espresso machine that sits in each one like a benevolent Buddha. Its hissing and puffing produce a strong black brew called, logically enough, café espresso. Additions of various ingredients to this basic brew produce the different coffees.

Contrary to popular belief, few beatniks frequent the houses. You will see students and their dates, serious artists and writers gathered to discuss their works and a considerable number of solid citizens out with their families for an evening's diversion.

The price for this diversion is reasonable enough. The various coffees usually cost from about a quarter up to 75 cents. There is rarely a cover, and a minimum, if any, usually runs only about a dollar or two.

There are now about 100 coffee houses in Manhattan, more than half of them concentrated in the bohemian Greenwich Village area. They now also thrive in San Francisco, Chicago and other major cities as well as in university towns.

Pershing Test Scores

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Pershing artillery missile has scored its longest test flight success to date, racing more than 400 miles down the Atlantic range.

Longer burning of both solid fuel stages and a reduction of instrumentation gear enabled the rocket to travel the longer route Tuesday. Longest previous Pershing flight was about 250 miles. The weapon is scheduled to be deployed in Western Europe later this year.

Missing Boys Hunt
Pressed By Searchers

CLEARFIELD, Pa. (AP)—Rescue workers pressed a search of an abandoned clay mine for two missing boys today after finding a wallet and some pieces of clothing inside the pit.

About 200 persons are taking part in the hunt for Larry Husted, 10, West Decatur, and Wesley Lowe, 13, Morgan Run, who have been missing since Sunday.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Messer are celebrating the birth of their third child, a son.

Messer is 92. Mrs. Messer 27. They have been married 12 years.

Despite the 65-year age difference, Mrs. Messer said, she and her husband have shared what she considers a perfect marriage except for "those little arguments everybody has."

Their son, Randall Anthony, was born Monday. The other children are Patricia, 8, and Bobbie Lynn, 5.

Extra Flying
Sends Residents
To Telephones

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Every few weeks the amount of flying in and out of Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base at the south edge of Kansas City takes a sudden spurt.

It regularly touches off a barrage of telephone calls from anxious residents of the neighborhood.

The explanation is simple: The extra flying is part of an exercise designed to maintain the skill of interceptor pilots and test the workings of the Air Defense Command.

The Air Force has hit upon an idea for heading off all the telephone calls. It is going to announce the exercises in advance. One started today.

Some Lawbreakers

General Sessions Judge Charles Marks says he believes the language barrier often is a main cause of this type of problem.

At the start of the year he began sentencing youthful defendants who appeared good risks to attend school to learn English. He said the program has been so successful that other judges had agreed to give it a try.

Ann
Landers
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Please be honest. You answer may be the most important turning point in my life.

If you were 21 years of age, would you marry a young man who had no money in the bank, owed a few small debts, had a very good job with a promising future, and was brimming over with ambition and confidence? — STAR EYES.

Dear Star Eyes: I did. And it's wonderful.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a working girl who saved her money and bought a new car. My boy friend is gainfully employed but he's a "saver" not a "spender." Lowell has no car of his own (although he could afford one) but he borrows mine when he visits his mother in the suburbs.

Yesterday he returned my car with a smashed grill and broken headlights. He said the brakes didn't hold and he ran into his mother's fence.

We went to the garage together, and the estimate to repair the damage was $88. My insurance doesn't cover this sort of accident.

Lowell turned to me and said, "If you think I'm paying for this you're crazy. With those lousy brakes you're lucky I wasn't killed." The garage man said, "The brakes are perfectly fine." Lowell turned red and left in a huff.

Today I received a check for $90 with this note: "Buy yourself a new boy friend with the change!"

Shall I cash the check or return it? I fell terrible. PHOEBE

Dear Phoebe: Cash the check and send Lowell $2 which is what he has coming. He clearly has no sense of personal integrity and you're fortunate indeed to discover it early.

Dear Ann Landers: What can I do about a neighbor who is forever borrowing my sewing machine, knife sharpener, vacuum sweeper, one cup of sugar, two eggs, laundry soap? — just name it and she's borrowed it.

I would not mind helping her out in an emergency, but I know she has a basement filled with appliances which don't work. She never bothers to have anything repaired.

This woman rarely returns what she borrows and I find myself knocking on her door asking for MY appliances. When she is not at home I'm out of luck.

Please suggest a tactful question for handling this annoying problem. — EASY TOUCH.

Dear Easy: Why be concerned with tact when dealing with an inconsiderate, insensitive clod?

In the future when she comes a-borrowing tell her that you're sorry but you will be needing the item yourself.

Confidential to BOILING OVER: Well, simmer down. The bride's family sends out the invitations. The groom's mother may be totally blameless.

Confidential to RIPE FOR THE SLAUGHTER: A smart cow doesn't hand around Armour's. Get going!

Bunceton's "fierce" lady Dragons set three scoring records in the New Franklin Invitational Tournament Monday night when they whipped Fayette's girls 57-25.

Ottawa In Hot Pursuit Of Leaders

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ottawa continued its hot pursuit of the leaders in the Kansas Conference basketball race by upending Baker 64-49 at Baldwin Tuesday night. It was the second time Ottawa has beaten Baker this season.

In a similar role Missouri Valley beat Drury 68-66 in an MCAU game at Springfield.

In other action, Fort Hays State knocked off Kansas Wesleyan 90-77 in an inter-conference game at Hays and Lincoln University beat MacMurray 76-73 at Jacksonville, Ill.

Ottawa took command after the first three minutes and led Baker 30-21 at the half. Tom Kinder led the Ottawa attack with 20 points and Wilber Hedrick had 16 for Baker.

The victory gave Ottawa a 6-2 record in the league, half a game behind College of Emporia and a game and a half behind unbeaten Bethany. Baker is 1-8, locked in the cellar with Bethel.

There is no action in either of the Kansas inter-collegiate conferences tonight but Rockhurst of Kansas City plays St. Benedict's at Atchison.

Drury, a co-tenant of the MCAU cellar, seemed headed for an upset before it finally lost to Missouri Valley.

Missouri Valley led by a point with five minutes left in the first half when Drury suddenly wilted. Five times it threw the ball away, and in five minutes scored only one point, as Missouri Valley pushed ahead 38-28 at the intermission. Midway of the second half, Drury again moved to within two points but Missouri Valley edged to a six-point margin with barely a minute to go.

The victory gave Missouri Valley a 3-1 record in the MCAU, just off the pace set by unbeaten William Jewell and Tarkio. Drury has lost all three of its conference games. It shares the cellar with Culver-Stockton.

Westminster (1-4) tackles Culver Stockton at Canton tonight. Cape Girardeau State has a non-conference game at Kentucky Wesleyan.

Red China Getting Jets Over Protests

LONDON — — Overriding American objections, Britain will go ahead with sales of six Viscount jet airliners to Red China, government officials report.

They said a reported U.S. ban on an American firm's supplying certain parts for the six planes will not hold up the sales since the equipment can be obtained from other suppliers.

Frederick G. Dutton, U.S. assistant secretary of state for congressional relations, said in a letter to Sen. Kennedy B. Keating, R.N.Y., that an American firm whose British subsidiary supplies navigational and radar equipment for Viscounts had been warned not to supply the equipment for the six airliners.

Dutton said the parts are strategic materials banned from sale to Red China.

The British position, sources here said, is that the gear is subject to such control only in a quantitative sense because it would only be disadvantageous to sell it to the Reds in large numbers. The airliners themselves are not embargoed for sale to the Communist bloc.

The United States and Britain have long been at odds on the matter of trade with the Communist Chinese regime, which Britain recognizes and the United States does not.

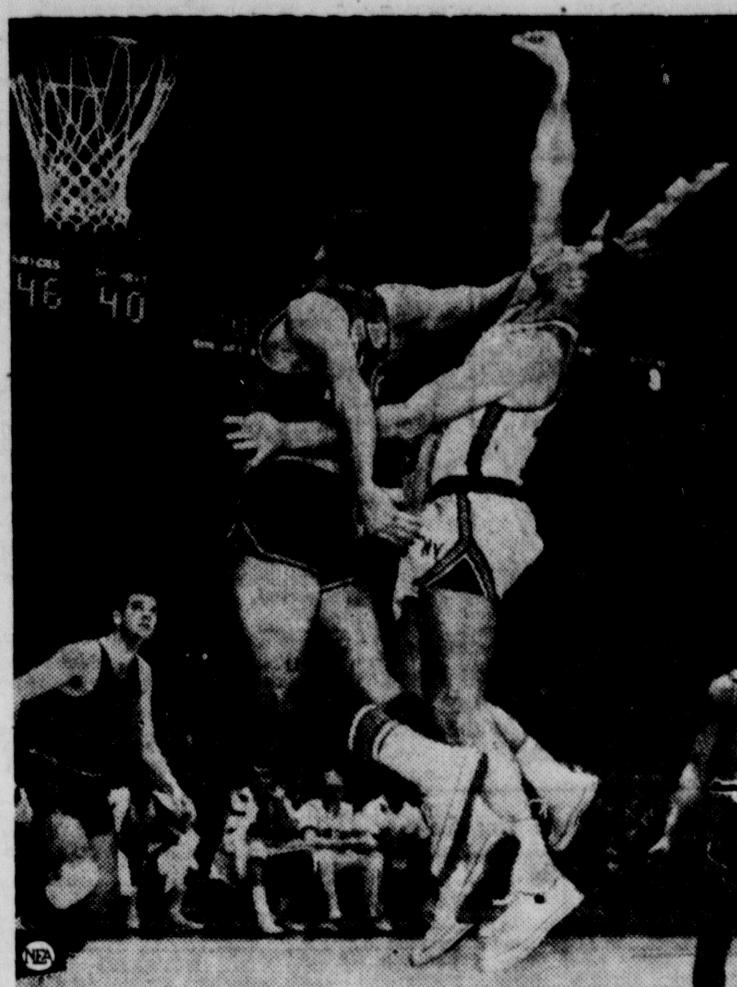

Cape Youth Wins State Democracy Contest Honors

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Jerry Jenkins, 17-year-old high school senior at Cape Girardeau, is the Missouri champion in the national Voice of Democracy contest sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

He won a free trip to Washington, where he will compete Feb. 6 with the winners from other states for a $1,500 scholarship.

The contestants wrote essays on "What Democracy Means to Me." The 20 Missouri finalists recorded their work on tape for the judging.

Jerry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Jenkins.

Evidence Presented In Tax Case

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (UPI) — Government attorneys began presentation of evidence in the federal income tax trial of racketeer Frank (Buster) Wortman and four associates today with the introduction of an allegedly secret partnership agreement.

Wortman, 57, is charged with evading more than $50,000 in income taxes for 1953-55. He is also charged along with the other four defendants with conspiracy to defraud the government.

The first prosecution exhibit was an alleged secret partnership agreement between Wortman and Gregory (Red) Moore, also a defendant, which dates back to 1946. Wortman was to receive half of Moore's profits from his interest in a Venice, Ill., gambling operation under terms of the agreement, the government said.

The prosecution's copy of the document noted that Wortman's name was not to appear on any formal partnership instrument "for obvious reasons."

Robert Cahill, a special assistant attorney general from Washington, heads the staff of government attorneys. In his opening statement to the jury Cahill sketched what he described as a maze of subterfuge in the alleged conspiracy.

Cahill said the evidence would show there were 25 overt acts in the conspiracy from 1944 through 1960.

Other defendants in the case besides Wortman and Moore are Edward (Ted) Wortman, Buster's brother, Sam Magin and Elmer (Dutch) Dowling. The government claims they were involved in gambling operations on which skimpy records were kept and that they conspired to conceal Frank Wortman's interests in other enterprises.

Wortman's attorney, Morris Shanker, said his client had "paid every dime" he owed in taxes and described Wortman as a "meticulous and conscientious tax payer."

Mental Lapse Costs Tipton Game Tuesday

"Mental lapses" cost the Tipton Cardinals a loss Tuesday night as they were defeated by the Eldon Mustangs, 47-46, in a Tri-County Conference game.

Jim Hlavacek won the game for the Mustangs as he made a field goal in the last two seconds to put his team ahead. The Cardinals seemed to "go to sleep" in the last quarter.

Mike Mulcahy hit the loop for 16 points for the Mustangs to lead their scoring. Harold Albin and John Baker shared high point honors for the Cardinals with 12 each.

In the "B" contest Tipton was again defeated by a score of 37-23.

High for Eldon was Hays who made 14 points count. Lubert was high pointer for Tipton, scoring 7.

Tipton meets California in a conference clash at Tipton, Jan. 23.

Score by quarters:

Eldon 11 14 10 12-47

Tipton 7 18 14 7-46

Individual scoring: Eldon — Richard 1, Scott 8, Hlavacek 12, Upton 4, Jesse 6, Tipton — Neimeyer 2, Carter 3, Edwards 2, Monks 6, Howard 9.

Probe Into Stock Market Biggest Since 1929 Crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three federal agencies are closing in on a group of white collar thieves—a sort of "Wall Street underworld"—responsible for swindling investors out of many millions of dollars.

The drive is part of the biggest investigation of the stock market since Congress turned the financial community inside out following the 1929 crash.

A series of market scandals, perhaps rivaling those of the depression era, could be the most immediate result. In the longer run, there will be important changes in the laws and regulations affecting the securities business and the stock exchanges. These laws have been largely untouched since their enactment after the 1929 post mortem, which was conducted by a $3,000-a-year Senate committee lawyer named Ferdinand Pecora.

It was during the Pecora inquiry that a lady midget jumped into the ample lap of the most prominent witness, J. P. Morgan. It was a rousing affair with scandal aplenty.

Less fanfare will surround the current investigation. Many witnesses will be heard only in private and much of the evidence may never be revealed.

Chairman William L. Cary of the Securities and Exchange Commission says: "There will be no midget perched upon anyone's lap. This study will be responsible."

A special 50-member staff at the SEC is leading the inquiry, at the direction of Congress and with an appropriation of $750,000. It is to report to the Senate and House by Jan. 3, 1963. Although working mostly in private, the group will hold a series of public hearings on particular trouble spots. The first of these is expected next month.

In addition to the SEC's efforts, which will touch all phases of the business, the Justice Department is embarked on a string of grand jury investigations and the Internal Revenue Service is assigning a panel of experts to develop tax cases in the securities field.

The American Stock Exchange, the second largest in New York City and the nation, already has been jarred by scandal and faces a major reformation.

The big unanswered question is whether the taint of scandal will touch the mighty New York Stock Exchange. The "big board" is slated for investigation but, to this date, is free of any public hint of wrongdoing.

Without question, a cloud of uncertainty will hang over the entire market place until the investigation of the big board is completed. The stakes are great.

Any chicanery traced to the floor of the New York Stock Exchange might well shatter the mass enthusiasm which has pushed stock prices to historic highs in recent months.

Federal investigators will concentrate on operations in New York, the financial capital, but will not ignore the activities of brokerage firms elsewhere. It will be a nationwide investigation.

Two developments are imminent:

A federal grand jury in New York will act soon in the case of Jerry and Gerard Re, who were expelled from the American Stock Exchange last May by SEC order. It was this case that prompted the current series of investigations.

The Re's, father and son, conducted the daily exchange auctions in about 20 stocks and were held responsible by the SEC for multiple manipulations and illegal stock sales. Millions of dollars were involved. The grand jury has been looking into ties between the Re's and master swindler Lowell Birrell, now a fugitive in Brazil.

The SEC is completing an explosive report on a special inquiry into activities on the trading floor of the American Stock Exchange, known to Wall Streeters as the Amex. This investigation produced evidence that the Re's were not the only Amex insiders to skirt the law.

The Amex already has changed a number of its rules and policies to guard against a repetition of the Re scandal. A broader reorganization was recommended late last month by a committee of prominent members. The aim was to give the exchange management greater freedom in policing activities on the trading floor.

Another problem facing the Amex is the selection of a new president to succeed Edward T. McCormick, who resigned last month.

His resignation has been linked, at least in part and unofficially, to the uncovering by the Amex board of governors that he accepted a $5,000 favor in 1956 from Alexander Guterma, who later was exposed as a major market swindler.

Guterma paid off a $5,000 gambling debt which McCormick contracted during a trip the two men made to Havana. The transaction was not illegal and the incident occurred two years before Guterma began falling afoul of the law.

Guterma, once the president of three companies listed on the New York Stock Exchange, now is in a federal prison, having been convicted of violating the securities laws. The only big operator jailed to date, he reportedly looks with a certain bitterness on fellow conspirators who retain their freedom. Some say he has been supplying valuable leads for the various grand jury investigations. The biggest sensations may well stem from the work of the grand juries and the Justice Department.

Of more enduring significance, however, will be the SEC's study of all phases of the securities business because this aims at legislative changes.

In the over the counter market, the SEC has a wide open field. This area is so loosely policed and loosely organized that even the commission's experts are sometimes mystified by its operations.

Miss Calvet's Art Career Takes Shape

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Corinne Calvet, the Americanized French pastry, is getting her career off the ground after a hiatus of a few years.

The start of Corinne's renewed activity is a role as the contessa in Hemingway's "Adventures of a Young Man." It may well start her phone jingling again, but she isn't waiting around for that happy sound.

She has a new career: painting. To my own unstudied eye, it would seem this new career might overshadow the other one.

Corinne showed me some of the canvases in her Trousdale Estates home, a stone's throw from those of Richard Nixon, Dinah Shore and Groucho Marx—if you're the kind who throws stones.

The paintings are everywhere, even in the bathroom, and some of them seem brilliant. They are splashed with color, and in many of them you can see what the picture is about.

She classifies herself as "an impressionist" who lets you know what she is doing."

Art is not new to her. When she started dabbling in drama in Paris, she was also studying sculpture and architecture at the Beaux Arts. Drama took precedence as she won fame in French and American films. When good roles stopped coming, she returned to art.

Now she is working till dawn each day to finish 45 paintings for a one-woman show in London in late spring.

Three years ago she was upset by her divorce from actor Jeffrey Stone and by the procession of sexpot roles that were submitted to her. She packed up son Robin and went to live in Paris. She remained a naturalized American citizen.

Program On Civil War Given at Sorosis Meet

Members of Sorosis were greeted Monday afternoon by the new members dressed in fashions of the Civil War period, some authentic, some made for the occasion, but all pretty and giving the atmosphere for the program they were to present at Heard Memorial Club House.

Mrs. Harold Anderson, civics chairman, under whose department the New Member Program came, presented Mrs. James Giokaris, who gave a brief outline of the program, stating that one of the things that came out of the Civil War was songs that have lived through the years.

She then asked the Sorosis members to sing some of the Civil War songs. Mrs. Gilbert V. Jones, a past president of Sorosis, led the singing, with Mrs. William Bunn, a new member, at the piano. The songs were: "Dixie," "Battle Hymn of the Republic," "Tenting on the Old Camp Grounds" and "When Johnny Comes Marching Home."

Mrs. Giokaris, then introduced Sam E. Ross, husband of one of the new members. Mr. Ross, whose grandfather was a Civil War general, has many relics of that war, including documents and has made a study of this war.

He first told of the Civil War Round Tables, which started with one in Chicago about 15 years ago, where a small group of men gathered to discuss the Civil War. That Round Table now has 500 members, and there are 130 in the United States, with some in England, France and other countries. There are three in Missouri, one in Springfield, one in St. Louis and one in Kansas City. Mr. Ross is a member of the Kansas City Civil War Round Table. The dues are $10 a year, which is used for the expenses of outstanding speakers on the Civil War, he said. A yearly tour of a battlefield is taken, too.

More than 100,000 books have been written on the Civil War, he stated, but "Gone With the Wind" has outsold them all, in fact, outside of the Bible, it has outsold all other books.

The first battle of the Civil War was fought at Bull Run, Ross stated, in 1861. It was a very small battle, however. He went on to say there were more battles fought in Missouri than in any other state except two. Fighting in the Civil War were all of our own people and more were killed in that war than all the other wars combined in which this country has fought.

Mr. Ross stated that in 1860 the citizens of Missouri turned out 100 per cent in voting. Every man voted.

Interesting stories on the part women played in the Civil War was told by the speaker.

Dorothea Dix, a quiet, pensive, sickly woman, was instrumental in getting hospitals for the insane and at 34 was appointed to head the federal nurses organization. She worked without salary.

Firm Fiscal Foundation

Economists have been saying for years that automobile manufacture and the building industry provide the broadest underpinning for the American economy. There is new evidence that the effect of building may be greater than anyone has realized.

A two year study by the magazine Practical Builder indicates that the impact of building in the light construction field — homes, low-rise apartments, schools, churches — is particularly strong in the nation's local communities.

This is not quite the commonplace statement it might appear.

Understandable enough is the fact that a large part of the construction dollar goes for on-the-job labor, for materials purchased and in many cases produced locally.

Not as apparent is the secondary effect of substantial purchases by new home occupants for furniture, furnishings, appliances, outdoor supplies, maintenance, and automotive items.

Inquiry in Columbus, Ohio, chosen for its closeness statistically and otherwise to the average United States community, disclosed that the typical new homeowner spends more than $1,100 for basic items in the first year of occupancy.

The study presumes that something roughly comparable is taking place in every American city and town as new homes go up.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Law Specific On Conflict of Interests

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—In June, 1958, John A. McCone, the new would-be Central Intelligence chief, wrote a letter to Sherman Adams, later kicked out of government for a conflict of interest, to see whether he, McCone, might have a conflict of interest as new chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Ignoring the fact that the Goldfine charges against Adams had not made him the best man to act as judge, McCone listed the Utah Construction Company, Kaiser Engineers, Dow Chemical, Union Carbide as doing large business with the Atomic Energy Commission, and simultaneously doing business with his own privately owned shipping companies.

Significantly, two of these companies, Kaiser and Utah Construction, showed the pattern of business links McCone has kept with his old associates and war profiteers. McCone was president and a partner with Henry Kaiser and associates in running the California Shipbuilding Company during the war when they rolled an investment of $100,000 into an over-all profit of $44,000,000.

Later, when he was under secretary of the Air Force, McCone gave his old partner a quickie flying boxcar contract at three times the cost the Air Force was paying Fairchild. Incidentally, Senate hearings conducted by the late Sen. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire showed that Kaiser and his subsidiaries got a total of $219,011,919 in government RFC loans; received $6,568,000,000 in government contracts and got approximately half a billion dollars in quickie tax write-offs.

Big AEC Contractors

Kaiser has also been one of the biggest contractors with the Atomic Energy Commission including the period when Kaiser's old partner, John McCone, was AEC chairman.

The company which operates under the all-inclusive name of Utah Construction Company is also part-owned by Kaiser and actually is a big seller of uranium to the AEC through its subsidiary, Lucky Mc Uranium Corp.

Union Carbide is one of the biggest contractors with the Atomic Energy Commission. It not only sells uranium to the AEC, but operates AEC plants at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Paducah, Ky. Both Union Carbide and the Kaiser interests benefited from the AEC's decision not to buy uranium from "under-developed countries." This obviously played into the hands of established American companies such as Union Carbide and Kaiser.

Yet McCone, before he became chairman of

Menon's Propaganda

American politicians perhaps have no more favorite whipping boy than India's Krishna Menon, but he has done much to be whipped for and keeps on doing more.

One flogging he deserves, however, has not yet been meted out. His basic role in India's ill-advised seizure of Portuguese Goa is clear enough. Only now emerging is the fact that he set the stage with a rash of lies rivaling the output of famed Nazi propagandist Joseph Goebbels.

Menon charged, among other things, that the Portuguese were stirring border incidents, committing atrocities, plotting a "scorched earth" retreat, plunging the colony into crisis. Reliable U.S. correspondents like NBC's Welles Hangen, in Goa at the time, say flatly none of these things occurred. They were a product of Menon's fertile—if not admirable—imagination.

Into Calmer Waters

The labor turbulence that marked so many of the postwar years evidently is subsiding somewhat.

In 1961, for the second straight year, a new postwar low in strikes was recorded. The 1961 total—3,300—compares with 1952 and 1953 highs, in the Korean War period, of more than 8,000 each.

Other measures are better, too. "Man-days" of work lost matched the low of 1957. Only that year and 1960 saw fewer postwar workers on strike. Just 14 strikes affecting 10,000 or more workers occurred in 1961.

Explanations are numerous. More long-term contracts exist. Recession times like 1960-61 often see a decline in strikes, unions fearing they may deepen the slide. And labor leaders feel more pressure these days to keep the economy going so this country can hold pace in the world struggle.

New houses, of course, cost a community money in terms of services not directly chargeable or collectable, such as police and fire protection. But they are also an enduring asset yielding income.

The improved property goes on the tax rolls, and its owner pays various other kinds of local taxes and fees into city coffers. On balance, according to the magazine survey, the city is the gainer by perhaps $70 a year for every new house.

It was found in a number of instances that the addition of new housing to the tax rolls was a major factor in keeping taxes down on older housing, as various city costs climbed.

Building obviously is an important economic factor in every community. In some it is the biggest; in many, the only industry of any size.

To encourage it, therefore, would seem almost an automatic objective in U. S. cities coast to coast. Yet Practical Builder discovered anew that construction is hobbled in most places by outmoded or contradictory building codes, restrictive labor practices, bad zoning, unimaginative use of materials and techniques.

The industry itself is being urged, properly, to attack these barriers with vigor. But the economic stake is so plain that city officials, planners, civic leaders and others at the local level should not have to be prodded to push the roadblocks aside.

Conversation Monopolized By Budget

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the most awful things about the federal budget—and it is awful if you're not good at arithmetic—is that it will monopolize Washington conversation for quite a while.

Two plump volumes President Kennedy at noon Thursday unfolds for Congress the national budget, his estimate on the cost of running the government another year.

One of the most delightful things about Kennedy's budget, in a grue some kind of way, is that it is supposed to be more simplified and streamlined than any budget of the past.

The only one likely to think so is the superintendent of a digit factory. Nobody could enjoy this budget, or any other budget, except an accountant. Having to read it is like being sentenced to frustration.

Many people in government, thousands, have been putting this estimate together since last summer.

That's what a retired minister recently told a men's service organization in his community.

With that one comment he seems to have summed up exactly what is wrong with the current attitude toward the country's aged, as expressed often by many of us.

Everybody wants to make a problem out of them. Golden age clubs are formed to keep the elderly entertained. But those can be a form of isolation where the aged are shooed off by themselves as though their useful days are over.

How much better it would be if they were sought out and welcomed into existing clubs where they could be given jobs and remain an active part of their communities.

In the various departments and agencies of government, beginning last summer, officials began estimating their next fiscal year cost. Department heads went over the figures. They are supposed to cut where they can.

Symbol of the Cross

The cross is regarded as the symbol of Christianity, but it did not become so until three hundred years after the birth of Christ. Vestiges of the cross have been found by archeologists in Egypt and Greece.

In the early years of Christianity, when followers were persecuted they had to worship secretly. The cross was adopted as a symbol, but was often disguised until it hardly looked like a cross.

The rise of the cross as an important Christian symbol is credited to the conversion of the Emperor Constantine in 312. He outlawed the cross as an instrument of torture and execution, thus opening the way for its worship in association with the death of Christ.

The cross most widely used today is the Latin cross. It is commonly accepted as representing the unity of a monotheistic deity through the vertical member, and earth as represented by the cross bar.

I said in my heart with regard to the sons of men that God is testing them to show them that they are but beasts. Ecc. 3:18

Reduce Family's Dental Bills With Regular Care Routine

By HAROLD THOMAS HYMAN, M.D.
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

If you are the bill-payer in your family, you may agree with the American Dental Association's opinion:

"American toothbrushing habits may have improved but they still leave much to be desired. Many persons continue to brush their teeth as a ritual or for aesthetic benefits. They do it when convenient instead of immediately after eating. And many (two-thirds) use toothbrushes well beyond the time when the bristles are worn out."

Many place their faith in dentifrices and/or mouthwashes containing ammonium compounds, urea, chlorophyll derivatives, anti-enzymes, compounds, antiseptics, bactericides and antibiotics. This, despite the fact that none gave the dental council sufficient evidence of their "substantial effectiveness."

Beyond this, the council is opposed to deceptive dentifrices advertising that includes "claims that suggest or imply the products will . . . substitute for regular toothbrushing, substitute for dental public health procedures such as fluoridation, permit unrestricted consumption of sugar-containing confections, prevent oral disease, give all-day protection with one brushing, provide an invisible shield giving unlimited protection, prevent 'bad breath' without noting that such breath may be due to diseases of the nose, sinuses, lungs or gastrointestinal tract, remove from the mouth a large proportion of the bacteria which are associated with dental decay etc."

What all this adds up to so far as the individual householder is concerned is the need for reducing the costs of dental care and improving the quality of dental hygiene by seeing to it that each member of the family heeds the advice of the dental council to brush thoroughly after eating, remove food particles and rinse the mouth with salt or soda solution.

The Mature Parent

Parents Can't Always Show United Front Before Child

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Dear Mrs. Lawrence:

Shouldn't parents side with each other in arguments with a child instead of one taking the child's side? My husband has taken our 8-year-old's side against me over an argument we had in a store. She was fresh to me in front of dentifrice is merely "an aid in combating dental decay; it is not a cure-all. Nor will it substitute for fluoridation of community water supplies."

Beyond this, the council is opposed to deceptive dentifrices advertising that includes "claims that suggest or imply the products will . . . substitute for regular toothbrushing, substitute for dental public health procedures such as fluoridation, permit unrestricted consumption of sugar-containing confections, prevent oral disease, give all-day protection with one brushing, provide an invisible shield giving unlimited protection, prevent 'bad breath' without noting that such breath may be due to diseases of the nose, sinuses, lungs or gastrointestinal tract, remove from the mouth a large proportion of the bacteria which are associated with dental decay etc."

a salesclerk and to punish her, I wouldn't buy her a new bathrobe. As usual, her father took her part and right in front of her said I should have bought her the bathrobe anyway. He encourages her to be defiant . . .

Answer: Are you asking me to agree that you have the right to your husband's support regardless of his opinions?

If so, I too have to disagree with you.

As to the evil effect upon your daughter of your husband's refusal to "side" with you, the effect, I'm afraid, doesn't interest me. Adults can't spend their lives worrying about the effects on children of everything they do. They are just as important as children. If your husband objects to your depriving your daughter of a bathrobe because she expressed herself rudely, he is, so far as I'm concerned, entitled to his difference from you. As in general I don't go for parental self-sacrifice, neither do I go for the idea of sacrificing adult conviction in order to maintain a cozy appearance of grown-up unity for children.

It never fools them, anyway.

And as no human being can manage indefinite submission to another one, the submitting parent usually solves his problem by losing interest in his children's discipline.

The training of children isn't all picnic. We can't deal with young disobedience, falsehood and jealousy without getting our moral values involved. As two people can't possibly hold identical moral positions, the training of children inevitably exposes parents' differences. If the parents are interested in each other, they don't evade these conflicts, resent them or try to squash them out of existence. They use them to discover more about each other. They say, "Why did you object to what I did?" Just as they revealed themselves to each other to beget the child, they continue to reveal themselves to each other in the process of raising the child.

That's one of the big dividends of parenthood.

We lose it if we must have unconditional loyalty. Under such circumstances we cannot use a husband's objection to our treatment of his child to learn more about him. We can feel only rage at his treachery.

Regarding the interior and defense ministries, a spokesman for Boun Oum said, "if we let Prince Souvanna have them, they would only be grabbed by the Communists." Presumably there was a possibility of informal talk between the three princes, but time was growing short and no meeting had been arranged. Boun Oum's spokesman said the prince would return to Laos for his mother's cremation Sunday.

Souphanouvong said in Prague on the way here that the most important factor affecting the Geneva parley was the military situation in Laos. He claimed Boun Oum had sent 9 to 10 battalions against his Pathet Lao forces in four attacks since Dec. 27. He said his forces are "holding up."

The Vientiane government has accused the Pathet Lao of massive attacks on its forces and of getting large reinforcements from Communist North Viet Nam. U.S. military observers in Vientiane say both sides are exaggerating and that there have been only the usual indecisive skirmishes which have been occurring ever since the cease-fire last May.

Traditionally, the man who wears his hat indoors is showing his independence. British House of Commons members started wearing hats in session to show their independence of the king. Early U.S. congressmen followed suit. Representatives wore hats in session until the end of Jackson's term. Finally in 1837 a House rule banned this ancient symbol of independence.

Questions, Answers On Congo Situation

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the second of two groups of questions and answers dealing with the situation in the Congo—especially the controversial aspects of U.N. action in Katanga. The answers, based on the best available information supplied by public records and observation on the scene are a symposium of three AP writers, Lynn Heinzler, Max Harrelson and William L. Ryan.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

More questions and answers to fill in the background of the Congo-Katanga situation:

Q. Why can't Katanga, invoking the principle of self-determination, simply declare itself an independent nation?

A. No country in the world has been willing to recognize Katanga as a separate entity. In the U.N., various Security Council and General Assembly resolutions firmly opposed separation of Katanga from the rest of the Congo. The only question open for discussion, so far as the U.N.'s 10 members were concerned, was how Katanga would fit into the national Congo framework. Would it get broad autonomy in a confederation or be placed under a strong central government? Even Belgium, most outspoken supporter of Moise Tshombe, accepted the idea that Katanga belongs within the Congo. Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak told the Security Council in November: We are against the secession of Katanga. We are convinced that the future of the Congo depends on reconciliation and the return of the province of Katanga to the Republic of the Congo."

Q. What is U.S. policy trying to accomplish in Katanga?

A. Secretary of State Dean Rusk has said Katanga secession could plunge the Congo into anarchy and open the door wide to the Communists. The United States appears to view the issue as a matter of peaceful integration of all the Congo—or violent civil war. The United States probably does not consider it wise to attempt unification by force but has supported the idea of evicting Tshombe's white political and military advisers by force, to deprive him of a most effective asset: It is doubtful Katanga could operate effectively without white technicians and advisers in most government departments. The announced U.N. aim has been to oust white advisers who have been resisting U.N. resolutions on the Congo. In addition, Washington seems to fear that Katanga's secession could lead to other breakaways.

Q. Why not just let Katanga secede and be done with it?

A. The U.S. feeling appears to be that Katanga's mineral wealth is vital to the Congo, to shore it up against threats of Communist infiltration and eventual Soviet bloc domination. For example, Katanga would have provided, in the first year of independence, about $100 million—half the Congo budget—had there been no secession attempt. Instead, it provided nothing.

Q. How about the reactions of North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies?

A. Britain had grave misgivings about U.S. support of the Katanga action. Fear was expressed in London that the U.S. decision could prove a costly blunder risking eventual Communist victory through defeat of the strongest anti-Communist force in the Congo, the Katanga government of Tshombe. The British seemed to feel the U.N. should not impose political solutions by force. Prime Minister Macmillan noted that if Tshombe were destroyed, the U.N. would find itself "with a province as large as France on its hands and no means at all of governing it." Similar misgivings were expressed in France and Belgium, both of whom have important interests in Katanga's mineral wealth. But Belgium has renewed diplomatic relations with the Leopoldville government. Portugal, another colonial power, fears the effect of Congo events on Angola.

Q. What was the Kitona pact and what was the U.S. role?

A. At Kitona Tshombe promised to accept the authority of the central government. Edmund A. Gullion, U.S. ambassador to Leopoldville, flew to Elisabethville, Katanga capital, and persuaded Tshombe to make the trip to Kitona.

Tshombe jockeyed a bit, backing away from the Kitona declaration. He finally agreed to accept most of it, including the fundamental law under which the Congo is supposed to be governed. He had participated in the writing of that constitution in Brussels before independence in 1960. Kitona brought a truce but there appeared to be a long process of bargaining ahead.

Q. Why doesn't the Congo government use its own armed forces to end the Katanga secession?

A. The Congo has about 25,000 troops (apart from Katanga). The army commander, Gen. Joseph Mobutu at best can hope to control about 17,000. The other 8,000 are controlled by Gen. Victor Lundula, who has been at Stanleyville with Antoine Gizenga. The Congo has neither the means nor the equipment for the job. But there were indications that Gen. Lundula was drawing closer to Mobutu.

Q. What about the effect on the rest of Africa?

A. There is considerable worry. In the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, Prime Minister Sir Roy Welensky has put forward the view that the West is losing the struggle for influence in Africa. He says the United States and Britain should do all in their power to keep Africa's strategic ports and resources available to the West. He fears that vacuums will be created by premature withdrawals of colonial authority. These views probably are shared by many in Britain and Western Europe as well as by white populations in Africa.

Q. Some circles in the United States criticize Kennedy administration actions in Katanga. What about that?

A. The basis of criticism is mainly the expressed fear that by defeating Tshombe, the U.N. with U. S. support will have helped pave the way for a Communist takeover of all the Congo.

Richard M. Nixon, claiming Kennedy policies created an "incredible mess" in the Congo, called the U.S. support of the action "the worst foreign policy blunder since the handling of the Cuba invasion."

Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., described the U.N. action as "naked aggression." Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., called the policy suicidal. These comments echoed sentiments of some private citizens and organized groups.

The policy had its defenders inside and outside Congress. Nixon's 1960 running mate, former U.N. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, said that if the U.N. force had not been set up to enter Katanga "there is no doubt in my mind that the Russians would have tried to go in and we might have done what we could to prevent that, and we might have had another Korea." Secretary Rusk said neither the United States nor the U.N. was attempting to impose any political or economic system on the Congo. Undersecretary of State George W. Ball argued that the U.N. action prevented Soviet domination in the Congo. He said there was "no legal political, economic and moral case" for the Tshombe secession.

Q. What has supported Tshombe in his opposition to unification?

A. First of all, Tshombe's own armed forces, with white officers and European-manned planes, were a source of strength, in addition, he had both economic and political support at home and abroad. Conor Cruise O'Brien of Ireland, who resigned as chief U.N. official in Katanga, claimed Britain undercut U.N. activities.

Carl Rowan, deputy assistant secretary of state for public affairs, in a prepared text accused the Union Miniere of widespread propaganda activity and lobbying on behalf of Tshombe.

A State Department spokesman later said the speech was "not cleared at the highest level of the department."

It was obvious much of Tshombe's strength stemmed from Katanga's own riches and Union Miniere power.

In addition, the secession movement drew support from sources such as the Rhodesia-Nyasaland federation, the Congo's neighbor.

MADE THE TEAM—Newly arrived on the list of the best-dressed women this year are: Mrs. Charles Wrightsman, wife of a wealthy oil man, left; Mme. Herve Alphand, wife of the French ambassador to U.S., upper right, and Signora Alberto Agnelli of Turin, Italy, auto family.

At least, it was moral support. Q. Just what is the Union Miniere? What is its role in these events?

A. The Union Miniere du Haut Katanga is a powerful mining and development company which provides 60 per cent of Katanga's state income and could provide nearly half the state income for the entire Congo. Its control, about 54 per cent, is in the hands of anonymous shareholders.

The rest is held by the Congolese state, the British Tanganyika Concessions and the Belgian Societe Generale de Belgique Bank.

The chief U.N. officer in the Congo, Dr. Sture Linner, told U.N. headquarters the Union Miniere allowed its installations to be used for attacks against U.N. personnel in Elisabethville.

He said U.N. troops were fired on by mortars and machine guns from points on Union Miniere property.

Union Miniere headquarters denied all charges, including allegations of political and military activities.

Q. What does the Congo operation cost and who foots the bill?

A. The operation costs the U.N. approximately $10 million a month.

The total up to the end of 1961 was $160 million, well over twice the cost of the U.N.'s general budget for a year. All 104 members of the world organization have been assessed proportionate shares, but the refusal of 68 countries to pay anything has plunged the U.N. into a financial crisis.

The deficit on the Congo operation, $75 million, would have been substantially larger if the United States and a few others had not made voluntary contributions in addition to their assessed shares.

Among those refusing to pay were the Soviet bloc, France and Belgium. The Soviet Union alone owed $20 million for 1960-1961. Some, like the Soviets and the French, objected to the U.N.'s role; some simply pleaded poverty.

The U.N. hopes to meet the crisis temporarily by a $200-million long-term bond issue, but this will still leave the basic problem unsolved.

Q. What are the prospects?

A. It will be a long, uphill struggle. The Congo still lacks the administrative sinews and educated core needed to make a nation live.

Tshombe can be expected to try to keep a measure of autonomy, or to convert the Congo into some sort of loose federation.

U.S. spokesmen picture the central Congolese premier, Cyrille Adoula, as a moderate non-Communist with a legitimate claim to govern.

The United States likely would accept some form of decentralization but opposes the idea of secession at will.

Some in the United States and abroad had expressed fear the Katanga action would mean a strengthened hand for Gizenga.

But this month his own political group, the African Solidarity party, announced

Gizenga was no longer its president.

A large majority, backing the resolution, clearly indicated disenchantment among Gizenga's following.

The action would mean a strengthened hand for Gizenga.

Interview Significant Step

Public Opinion Is Growing More Important In Russia

EDITOR'S NOTE—If there was any one thing Joseph Stalin did not worry about in running the Soviet Union, it was public opinion at home. Now, a student of Soviet affairs reports, there are indications of a change that may well prove important to the West over the long run.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press News Analyst

If the Soviet leadership's past performance is a barometer, the future will yield growing evidence of Kremlin concern with Soviet public opinion.

Years hence, historians may consider the publication last November by the newspaper Izvestia of an interview with President Kennedy as the most significant event of 1961.

That strengthened a belief among students of Soviet affairs that public opinion is increasingly important in a society going through long and agonizing process of coming of age.

It suggested that Soviet Premier Khrushchev's regime was like a man at the reins of a charging troika, each of its three horses quick to note the change.

Upon persuasion new depends the amount of effort expended by Soviet people in the 20-year economic program, and the amount of effort expended by the manager-professional class in directing it.

The first horse: the Communist political machine supporting Khrushchev. It seemed obliged to justify itself in the eyes of both the home-grown Stalinists and world Communists anxious for a swift march to power.

The second horse: the new 20-year economic program. Khrushchev appears obsessed with the idea of building the Soviet economy to a stage where it can overwhelm U.S. and Western productive power.

The third horse: the thing called Soviet public opinion. It meant next to nothing while Stalin lived.

Lenin, Bolshevism's founder, laid down the dictum that Soviet power required a combination of coercion and persuasion.

After Stalin died in 1953, the coercive factor lost much of its force. The collective leadership, a sort of mutual protective association which succeeded the old dictator, had to break up the awe-some power of the secret police army. This meant more and more reliance on persuasion. Russians were quick to note the change.

Regarding Berlin, the Kremlin has been careful to avoid the impression that the door has been finally slammed on negotiations with the United States.

184 Attend Second Latin American Festival Session

The second session of the Latin American Mission Festival at the Wesley Methodist Church, was held Sunday night with an attendance of 184.

Emmett Hood was the teacher of the evening, the topic being: "Problems Facing Latin America, and Protestant Missions Come to Latin America."

Hood pointed out that Latin America has much good land and an abundance of wonderful resources, but it is the Indians of the country who need the missions. The average age in South America is 36 and the average salary is $210 a year.

He pointed out that the Indians in this country were not treated well either. The English, he said, came here to make their homes and bought the land from the Indians, who didn't understand they were going to take it over to live on it. They thought it would be for hunting. And so they were moved on back to Oklahoma and all of the tribes felt it was a trail of tears, for many of them died. Then came the oil and again they were cheated. We think the Indians in South America are mistreated — we can point a finger at ourselves, he said.

The Communists have a simple formula, Hood stated. They say all this industry and all the people in need, so this is ours as much as anybody's and take over. The reason that missionaries have not lasted longer, Hood said, is because they are not prepared. You don't begin by uprooting a native religion. He told of the native who was educated for a missionary and when he was going back to his own people, they told him they would kill him if he came.

But he went anyway. And they came with guns which they held. "The Bible says to watch and pray," he said. "And that was what I did. I watched those guns." But he began with their own religion, the things that were good in it, things they believed, and he had wonderful success. Hood urged, too, taking foreign students in the homes, and showing them the real side of America. There are too many things

The Rev. Walter Niles opened the meeting and invocation was made by Kirk McCary. Joe Allen was song leader with Mrs. John Marquess at the piano. John Ryan presided over the program. The session was dismissed by the Rev. Mark Horn.

The supper was served by the Couples Class, and in addition to the adult study there were classes for primary, junior, intermediate and senior classes as well as a nursery for the pre-school age children.

Rev. Marvin Coffey, who was a missionary in Brazil, will be the speaker next week.

Beautiful and colorful displays of articles from Latin America included coats, pictures, baskets, leatherwork, blankets, trays and many other articles.
